

MAHAJUBU, Abudul. The nineteenth-century Nubian mutiny in colonial Uganda: a social-historical perspective. Journal of Colonialism and Colonial History, 23 iii (2022) The Nubian mutiny in colonial Uganda was not only a military rebellion but also a social uprising. In 1897 the Nubian soldiers rose against their British Army masters whom they accused of breaching a social contract made between themselves and the British at Kavali in the southwestern corner of Lake Albert in 1891.
